President's Message

CPA President

Ann Beardall

I've thought long and hard about putting floats on my plane the past few weeks. Seriously, the gray skies and continual rain were getting to be an issue, at least for me and my general attitude and for the wet floors in my hangar as well. Here's hoping that this message comes along with a little more balance between sunshine and rain.

Speaking of putting floats on my plane, there will be a meeting in Gunnison on June 11 with the Colorado Parks and Wildlife folks to discuss the possibilities of getting some of our water open to float planes. Steve McCaughey from the Seaplane Pilots Association, along with some of his folks will be at the meeting and welcome any and all support from pilots here in the state. Keep an eye on your email and the website for details.

The Aviation Calendar of Events spreadsheet for 2015 is complete and available for download on the website. It looks like there is a lot of fun and interesting events planned around the state over the next few weeks and months, so be sure to check it out and join in the flying fun. As always, if you have an additional event, please post it to the website calendar or send us a note and we'll help get your event added and publicized. We'll be looking for you out there!

Please make sure if you are planning to do some flying in the mountains this summer that you check out the Mountain Flying course June 6 or August 29. Even if you've taken it in the past, consider taking it again as a refresher. It could save your bacon on those days when the temperatures are high and the density altitude is even higher.

And on another safety note, there is a lot of work being done on all our behalf regarding UAS/UAV and safely flying in the same airspace. A number of folks around the state are working on an educational campaign of "Know Before You Launch". We need to make sure that we are mindful and vigilant as we fly, especially knowing that there a lot of other "winged" craft flying now that weren't out there a year or 2 ago.

I hope to see you at the fly-in events and I hope you will put August 29 on your calendar as a "must attend" event as it will be the Fall Colorado Aviation meet and greet hangar party.

99s Colorado Chapter By Babette André Youth Outreach

The Colorado Chapter of the 99s (International Assn. of Licensed Women Pilots) hosted Girl Scout Day” on April 11, 2015 at Aspen Flying Club at Centennial Airport. Fifty Girl Scouts accompanied by parents and troop leaders, met to learn and earn a 99s aviation patch for their uniforms, and grasp an appreciation for the wonderful world of aviation.

There were five stations for exploring many aspects including weather, air traffic control, aviation history, paper-airplane making, flying with and without crosswinds, and hands-on preflight instruction. Visual aids and personal stories told of the advances and opportunities in private and commercial aviation.

The event was designed to show the joy and excitement of aviation mixed with education in science and technology. It was also to demonstrate a career avenue and possibilities for their own futures.

In addition to the 99s, volunteers from Aspen Flying Club, UAL Historical Foundation, Airline Denver, the Colorado 99s Collegiate Wing, Young Eagles and Women in Aviation contributed time and materials to make this one of the exciting ways to earn a badge.

99s Airmarking at Granby

The Colorado Chapter’s next airmarking adventure is June 13 in Granby, painting the town name on the newly designated Grand County Airport Emily Warner

Field (GNB) Volunteers will be painting over the previous airmarking in 20-foot letters and numerals that read GRANBY 123.0.

Everyone is invited to join us for the remarking party June 13!

Emily Warner is one of the original CPA members and charter signers. She is best known for being the first lady pilot to be hired by a passenger-carrying regular airline (Old Frontier) and is an Icon for women in aviation.

DUATS Continues

Source: AOPA & General Aviation News

Lockheed Martin and CSC will provide direct user access terminal services (DUATS) II to pilots under new contracts announced by the FAA.

According to the May 12 announcement, each company has been awarded a one-year, fixed-price contract to supply DUATS II with up to four one-year renewals. DUATS allows pilots to use the Internet to access weather and flight planning information and file and cancel flight plans.

The FAA DUATS program was first implemented in 1989, and since that time services have been provided by CSC and DTC DUAT. Lockheed Martin began offering Internet-based service in 2012. The new contracts mark the first time DTC will not have a role to play in providing DUATS. It is not yet clear what steps DTC users may have to take in order to make the switch to one of the remaining providers, but there will be a 60-day transition period.

The contract award follows a limited competitive bid process that was open only to the three existing government contractors. The FAA has said that it intends to modernize flight services in the coming years, but a bid process for that effort has not yet been established. In the meantime, Lockheed Martin's contract to supply flight services other than DUATS is scheduled to expire in September 2015, though the FAA has publicly said it intends to renew that contract while it develops criteria for a modernized system.

The service was formerly provided by CSC and Data Transformation Corporation (DTC). So what now?

If you are a DTC DUAT user, know that DTC has been granted a 60-day [until July 15] extension to their DUAT contract.

"We are fully operational and plan to continue operations during and after the 60-day extension," said DTC DUAT marketing manager Doug Priestley. "DTC DUAT is pursuing alternative avenues to provide the DUAT Service capabilities to its users following the 60 day extension period."

LaGarita Backcountry Strip has an identifier 5C06

Altho only available for scheduled flyins by arrangement with the manager, the identifier will make it easier to flight plan - no need to load the lat/long anymore.

RAF Seeks Congressional Airstrip Funding

Recreational Aviation Foundation (RAF) President John McKenna and Public Lands Liaison Mark Spencer of Arizona testified on March 18 before the U.S. House Department of Interior Appropriations Committee. Their goal was to request funding for the ongoing maintenance of airstrips on public lands managed by the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) and U.S. Forest Service (USFS). Their prepared documents and McKenna's verbal testimony are now part of the national record. They pointed out the historic value of BLM and USFS airstrips and their role in building and protecting U.S. infrastructure; and their continued use as recreational trailheads. "Our testimony spoke to the great aviation treasures that exist on our public lands. We spoke of how these assets – many of which are a century old – began as places to deliver goods and services to the Forest Service, and along the way provided for some recreational opportunities," McKenna recalled.

The RAF delegation testified that currently, volunteers who use the airstrips generally provide upkeep and maintenance. "We told Congress we are happy to do our share and more, but suggested that airstrips be recognized as places that – like trails and campgrounds – would benefit from greater interest by the public agencies who own them," Spencer added.

"The RAF has become officially recognized as a trusted partner on matters relating to recreational and backcountry aviation. We believe it raises the awareness of both the people we represent, and the policymakers who govern our public lands," McKenna said. "Accomplishing a budget item will be a marathon effort, but we'll provide the energy to keep this initiative moving forward to preserve these airstrips," he added.

AVWEB Editorial - Privatizing ATC

Solberg-Hunterdon Airport, NJ is a public asset judge rules

Jim Moore, AOPA

New Jersey Superior Court Judge Paul Armstrong ruled unambiguously in favor of a family owned airport with a long history, and excoriated the town government that has for decades attempted to thwart operations, and more recently to seize the property using eminent domain laws.

Armstrong's May 4 ruling, the latest chapter in a battle between Readington Township and the family owned airport that dates to the 1960s, states that town officials acted in bad faith in their condemnation of the property, and found the attempted land grab illegal.

"The evidence presented demonstrates that the public purpose stated by the Township for the taking of the airport property was not based on any public need but solely in response to community fears regarding the proposed use of the airport," Armstrong wrote, noting that town officials had done much to inflame those fears. He sharply criticized local officials who testified during the seven-month trial, stating their testimony "reveals a studied attempt to obscure the true purpose of the condemnors in the instant taking. The Court finds this testimony, as a whole, to be un-forthright, evasive, untrustworthy, argumentative, lacking credibility and therefore unworthy of belief."

Armstrong's 54-page ruling, posted on the airport website, details the value of Solberg-Hunterdon Airport with extraordinary eloquence, extending the argument to a rousing endorsement of general aviation airports as a whole.

"Not only is general aviation important to the national infrastructure, but it serves a critical role as the cradle of aviation. The security and economic vitality of the United States depends on this laboratory of flight where future civilian and military pilots are born," Armstrong wrote. "Airports such as Solberg blossomed in an era when local young men turned their dreams of barnstorming into air dominance in World War II and led this country into its golden age."

Armstrong went on to quote Charles Lindbergh. As for township officials, Armstrong had harsh words.

"Moreover, the resultant lack of transparency in governmental actions of Readington Township has subverted an open political process thus weakening the protection of all its citizens' private property rights including the Solberg family," Armstrong wrote.

7:00 - 11:00 a.m EAA #1267 Community Pancake Breakfast, Scholarship Auction & Fly-in 10:00 a.m Dedication Ceremony re-naming the Granby/Grand County Airport
honoring Emily Warner

A day to celebrate! Emily Warner CPA's Member #1:

Emily Warner is known for her stellar aviation career. She became the first woman pilot hired by a major U.S. airline in 1973 and three years later became the first U.S. woman airline captain. Emily was a flight school manager, flight instructor, and designated pilot examiner. With over 21,000 hours in her logbook and having given more than 3,000 check rides she was inducted into the National Aviation Hall of Fame and the National Women's Hall of Fame. She's flown for Frontier Airlines, Continental Airlines, UPS, and served as an FAA aviation safety inspector. Her Frontier Airlines pilot's uniform is on display at the Smithsonian's National Air and Space Museum. She commanded the first all-women flight crew and was the first woman pilot to become a member of the Air Line Pilots Association.

Don't miss this one! The annual EAA fly-in at GNB has always been a big draw for Colorado pilots but this year the Colorado Pilots Association plans to help make this the biggest and best they've ever had. Mount your noble steeds (airplanes), and head up to the newly named Granby/Grand County-Emily Warner Field for a day honoring one of Colorado aviation's finest. Fly or drive in for the EAA-sponsored breakfast and auction; stay for the dedication ceremony; visit the Emily Warner Field Aviation Museum & Granby Airport Pioneers Wall of Fame and then, either fly home, or stay in the Granby area to enjoy the rest of Granby's weekend's activities. Visit the links below to see what the area has to offer this wonderful July weekend.
